APPLICATION MANUAL

OVERVIEW OF INDUSTRIAL DESIGNS

WHAT ARE INDUSTRIAL DESIGN RIGHTS?

An Industrial Design is the ornamental aspect of a useful article (the way the object looks). This ornamental aspect may be constituted by elements, which are three-dimensional (the shape of the article) or two-dimensional (lines, designs, patterns and colours) but must not be dictated solely or essentially by technical or functional considerations. It is the right to protect the ornamental, non-functional features of an Industrial Article or Product that arise from Design Activity.

CONDITIONS FOR OBTAINING INDUSTRIAL DESIGN RIGHTS

A design must be Original or Novel meaning, it must be new, with nothing like it in existence in the world or in literature in order for it to be eligible industrial design protection.

WHAT CANNOT BE GRANTED INDUSTRIAL DESIGN RIGHTS?

Patents are open to most areas of science and technology but some areas are excluded from patentability. These are: -

- An idea
- The function of something
- Methods of constructing something
- The materials used in construction of something

RELEVANT INDUSTRIAL DESIGN LAWS AND TREATIES

WHEN TO FILE AN INDUSTRIAL DESIGN APPLICATION

Filing should be done as soon as possible, most importantly, before public disclosure of the industrial design. In Trinidad and Tobago, disclosure of the industrial design will not be taken into consideration if such disclosure occurred not more than twelve (12) months before the filing date and the disclosure was due to acts committed by the applicant or predecessor or by an abuse committed by third parties.

WHAT RIGHTS ARE OBTAINED FROM THE REGISTRATION OF AN INDUSTRIAL DESIGN

The registered owner of an Industrial Design or anyone under the registered owner's consent has the sole right to exploit it. Exploitation according to the Industrial Designs Act Chapter 82:77 Section 9(3) is defined as "the making, selling, importing or otherwise distributing, for commercial purposes, articles bearing or embodying a design which is a copy, or substantially a copy, of the industrial design."
